RECOGNITION AWARD

PRESENTED TO:

Dean’s Special Recognition Award

Matthew George
Department of Physics & Astronomy

Professor Matthew George is being honoured for leading the successful overhaul of second-year physics laboratories in the Faculty of Science. The labs, located in the Petrie Science and Engineering Building, underwent renovations to update the equipment and layout to give students a better learning experience and allow students to think outside the box. Thanks to Professor George’s efforts, the new labs now allow for more inquiry-based investigations and integrated peer learning.

Congratulations Matthew!

Dean’s Special Recognition Award

Hovig Kouyoumdjian
Department of Chemistry

Professor Hovig Kouyoumdjian is being recognized for his work on improving the first-year student experience in Chemistry courses and his participation in outreach activities for the Faculty of Science. He has assisted the Faculty with engaging high school groups during campus visits and tours, and performing exciting science demonstrations at the Markham Science Rendezvous event. His enthusiasm and expertise have cast a bright light on Chemistry and the Faculty of Science for our community.

Congratulations Hovig!

Polanyi Prize

Christopher Caputo
Department of Chemistry

Professor Christopher Caputo was among five researchers in Ontario recognized with a prestigious 2018 John Charles Polanyi Prize. He received the Prize in Chemistry. Professor Caputo's research program focuses on developing greener and more sustainable chemistry. His primary research focus is to develop new, low-cost catalytic materials derived from readily available main-group elements. The Polanyi Prizes are awarded in honour of Ontario's Nobel Prize winner John C. Polanyi and recognize outstanding researchers in the early stages of their career.

Congratulations Chris!

EXCELLENCE IN TEACHING AWARDS

PRESENTED TO:

Junior Tenure Stream Faculty

Nicole Nivillac
Department of Biology

It comes as no surprise to those who know her that Professor Nicole Nivillac is one of this year’s two faculty member winners. From the day she started at York, it was clear to all that she was a teacher whose many positive attributes are appreciated by her students. One student concluded her letter of support by saying that Dr. Nivillac is “everything a perfect professor should be.” That is high praise, but it’s consistent with the observations expressed by so many of her students in their letters of support. She’s fair, respectful, and kind, but she also proceeds in a manner that teaches students how to think like scientists. Her lectures are engrossing and, apparently, enhanced by her sense of humour and her ability to call upon real-world applications.

Congratulations Nicole!

Senior Tenure Stream Faculty

Christopher Lortie
Department of Biology

One theme that is evident from the letters of support for Professor Christopher Lortie is that he is unceasingly enthusiastic about his subject, and it’s apparent that this enthusiasm is infectious. One student confessed that it was Professor Lortie’s charismatic and energetic approach that made her look happily get up to attend her 8:30 classes with him. His teaching is creative, and students express their gratefulness to him for some of the unique opportunities he provides. These include offering real-time dynamic resources rather than simply relying on textbooks; helping students generate real datasets that they then analyze using customized computer programming; and organizing writing workshops to improve scientific writing. These and other creative approaches make his classes fun and exciting.

Congratulations Chris!
Richard Jarrell Award of Excellence for Teaching Assistants

Nicholas Bragagnolo
Department of Chemistry

Our second winning TA this year equally impressed the Adjudication Committee. Nicholas Bragagnolo’s lab teaching has had a positive impact on many York students. His warm and welcoming personality evidently makes attending his labs an enjoyable event. One international student was particularly articulate about how he was able to allay her anxieties as she tackled her learning tasks in a foreign environment. He evidently is able to help students learn the material and to solve problems successfully, and it’s clear he effectively promotes critical thinking. But on a deeper level, it was also clear in reviewing the letters of support that he deepens students’ love and passion for studying science.

Congratulations Nicholas!

Richard Jarrell Award of Excellence for Teaching Assistants

Eleni Fegaras
Department of Biology

For several years, the Adjudication Committee has been aware of Eleni Fegaras because of the continuing positive reports received that document the impact her lab teaching has on undergraduate students. This year, the accolades crescendoed into many heartfelt letters from her students. Creative in her explanations, and patient and caring are among the attributes that students repeatedly identify. One student boldly suggested he could speak for hours about why she deserves special recognition for her service to students! The professors with whom she works in teaching undergrad material think equally highly of her. One senior professor confessed that although he had worked with many great TAs, he had never had a similarly overall impressive experience till he had worked with Eleni.

Congratulations Eleni!

PRESENTED TO:

Early Career Research Award

Carol Bucking
Department of Biology

Professor Carol Bucking’s research program focuses on the integrative processes that regulate digestion in a wide range of fish species. Using a variety of techniques, her lab explores how the environment and environmental stressors influence fish digestion at the molecular, cellular, physiological and behavioural level.

“Clearly, Dr. Bucking is a force to be reckoned with in comparative physiology. She is also an enthusiastic and highly effective teacher, and an exceptional early researcher in the Faculty of Science.” – Colleague

Congratulations Carol!

Established Research Award

Thomas Baumgartner
Department of Chemistry

Professor Thomas Baumgartner is focussed on developing organic materials for sustainable energy applications. His multidisciplinary research program uses organic, inorganic, physical and polymeric techniques to explore the synthesis and characterization of phosphaorganic pi-conjugated materials.

“Thomas has a clear vision and an infectious enthusiasm for accelerating the research capabilities of our program at York University. His professionalism, teaching philosophy, ingenuity, and drive to push the boundaries of his science embodies the spirit of a true leader in chemistry.” – Colleagues

Congratulations Thomas!
Excellence in Graduate Mentorship Award

Kathi Hudak
Department of Biology

Professor Kathi Hudak’s research aims to understand the function of RNA toxins in mediating plants’ response to stress. Her lab takes a molecular approach to explore how RNA glycosidases are regulated in plants, and characterize their activity against viruses in human cells in order to develop their potential application as antiviral agents.

“Kathi is everything a role model should be. She is fair, measured, and nurtures our creativity with incredible patience. By promoting a balanced approach to research, she makes it clear that not only our success but also our happiness and well-being are important to her.” – Current Graduate Student

Congratulations Kathi!
